“The FPSB Value of Financial Planning Research 2023” Findings Released
Financial Planning Leads to Better Outcomes
High Tendency to Virtual Assets Investment for Baby Boomers and Relocation for Hong Kong People

(Hong Kong — October 4, 2023) – As consumers continue to feel the pressure of high inflation, rising interest rates, and the cost of housing, a new study launching today on World Financial Planning Day has found that Hong Kong people who work with a financial planning professional are better off. The findings have also revealed that half of the respondents shows tendency to relocate and virtual assets investment is popular among Baby Boomers (people born between 1946 to 1964).

The study has found that around 61% clients of financial planners are highly satisfied with their wealth, compared to 58% of unadvised consumers. It also found that around 9 in 10 (90%) clients of financial planners feel financially secure and a similar higher proportion (75%) feeling tangibly better off.

The FPSB Value of Financial Planning Research 2023, undertaken for Financial Planning Standards Board Ltd. (FPSB) and the Institute of Financial Planners of Hong Kong (IFPHK) by independent research firm MYMAVINS, surveyed 15,332 advised and unadvised consumers aged 25 and over, and earning over HK$450,000 in investable assets or equivalent across 15 territories, encompassing respondents from Hong Kong.

The study examines the value of financial planning, measuring the financial and non-financial impact of financial planning across quality of life, financial confidence, financial satisfaction and experienced value, while debunking the myths surrounding financial planning and analyzing the future of the profession.

While unadvised Hong Kong respondents recognize improved financial well-being and peace of mind (32%), and greater wealth growth (39%) as key benefits to seeking financial planning, 1 in 5 respondents perceive it as too expensive (22%) and hard to find someone trustworthy (26%).

However, 8 in 10 (80%) clients of financial planners say the value of financial planning outweighs the cost, with almost every (93%) advised respondents reporting they trust their financial planner to act in the best interests of the client.

Dennis Lau, Chief Executive Officer, IFPHK, shares his insights on the key findings, stating “The survey proves that working with a financial planning professional improves life in many aspects. I am particularly pleased to note that nearly every client deeply appreciates the “client-first” ethos that guides every financial planner. This profound sense of mutual trust and respect is something that technology can never replicate, making financial planners irreplaceable and highly valued even in our tech-savvy 21st century.”

Dante De Gori, CFP, Chief Executive Officer, FPSB says, “In this current volatile climate, where unexpected events can send shockwaves through the global economy, the role of financial planning in general and of CFP professionals in particular has become even more critical in empowering consumers to make informed financial decisions and achieve their long-term goals, while enjoying a better quality of life.”

“The findings in this global study illuminate a compelling reality: the immense value that professional planners bring in supporting clients’ financial needs amid times of uncertainty,” De Gori added.

The study also revealed the following key findings:

- Financial planning benefits more than just the wealthy. The study finds that 51% percent of advised respondents with an income of HK$625,000 and less report improved family life, improved social life (45%), improved mental health (42%) and increased work satisfaction (42%).
- Advised clients show a strong level of trust in their financial planners. The report reveals that Hong Kong respondents found value working with a professional planner (77%). Trust is also significantly high as 93% of clients who work with financial planners trust them to act in the client’s best interests and 86% of those who work with a financial planner are likely to continue their relationship.
- Financial advice unlocks benefits beyond money by improving overall mental health. About half (51%) of Hong Kong respondents who work with a financial planner have reported financial advice positively impacted their mental health and family life.
- Virtual assets investment is popular among baby boomers (people born between 1946 to 1964). More than half (51%) of baby boomers currently invest in virtual assets.
- Plans to relocate relatively common. Half of the respondents (50%) currently have plans to leave Hong Kong and relocate overseas permanently at some stage (over 1 in 3 within three years).

About the Value of Financial Planning Report 2023

The descriptions and statistics in this report are based on insights from a global research study undertaken for Financial Planning Standards Board Ltd. (FPSB) by independent research firm MYMAVINS. The large quantitative study undertaken in February 2023 involved an online survey of 15,332 respondents each of whom over 25 years in age earning over US$60k p.a. or holding over US$35k in investable assets or equivalent in other regions.

The survey included 1,014 respondents from Hong Kong [Nationals] respondents who were over 25 years in age earning over HK$450,000 per year.

The sample included both advised and unadvised consumers. Advised consumers are those who are currently working with a financial planner, those who seek financial advice as needed and those who have received financial planning advice in the past three years but not now. Unadvised consumers, on the other hand, are those who have never received financial planning advice from a financial planner or have not received financial advice in the past three years. The study also analyzed those consumers who work with a CFP professional. Financial planners who attain CFP certification have committed to rigorous standards of competency and ethics in financial planning.
